Fires in Detroit Since the Law Went Into Effect.

DETROIT, June 24 .- The records of the city fire department from July, 1891 to June 24, 1802, show that the number of fires from explosions of oil stoves have increased something more than 100 per cent.

The act of the squawbuck legislature reducing the test for illuminating oil twenty deg. went into effect last July. Since that time the records of the fire department show a steady increase in the number of fires that spring from the use of petroleum. The total number of fires has increased from 388 for the year ending June 24, 1891, to 454 for the year ending June 24, 1892, making total increase of sixty-six, or about 20 per cent. The number of fires attributed to the explosion of lamps has almost doubled creased from thirty-one in 1891 to fiftyseven in 1892.

Fire Marshal Baxter has found this increase so startling, unexpected and altogether unprecedented that he has taken the trouble to procure a sample of the oil that caused the fire in each case and test it. He has found invarinhip that it came up to the require-ments of the test established by the legislature.

Many of the fires that are attributed to carelessness with lamps are not lamp exp osions and are not due to the impure quality of the oil consumed in the case of oil stoves, however, the case is different. Without exception the fires that are caused by oil stoves are explouons. The number of these explosions has more than doubled since the passage of the law changing the methods of testing illuminating

During the years 1890 and 1891 only seven fires were attributed to this cause. In the years 1891 and 1892 that number had acceased to exteen.

Two Lost Their Lives. During the past month two persons have lost their lives from lamp explosions. One of them was Mrs. Charles Staibler of N . 235 Gratiot avenue, who was burned to death from a lamp explosion June 2. The other was F. O. Huether of No. 130 St. Aubin avenue, who dropped a lamp upon his bar one night, caught fire and was so terribly burned that he died a few days later.

In 1891-92 forty-four of the fires of that year were caused by carlessness with illuminating oil. Last year the fires from these causes had reached the extraordinary number of 100, double those from the same cause double those from the same cause. double those from the same cause during the previous year and nearly one-fourth of the whole number of fires for the year. How far this remarkable increase in ercentage of tires from oil explosion s to be attributed to the law test at which oil is now sold can not with certainly be stated. Fire Marshal Baxter the change. What it is has cost De- | er troit in loss of life and property during the past year is simply an indication | tion. of what it cost the state.

Unnatural Crime Committed by a Detroit

DETEOTT, June 26. - Jacob Clayton, a blacksmith living on Woodward avenue a short distance beyond Jacob's four-mile house, is charged with the awful crime of having ruined his own daughter, a girl of sixteen, crippled in body and weak in mind. It was not until three weeks ago that the girl's nother discovered her daughter's condition, and when she commanded the girl to tell her story the mother was horrified and shocked with the terrible confession in which the girl accused her father as the author of her shame. She further stated that the father's brutal conduct had been carried on for more than two years, and that he had threatened to murder her if she disclosed his guilt. The details of the girl's story are frightful in the extreme. She stated that when her father made his first improper advances to her she fell on her knees and entreated and egged him to desist, and that he finally choked ner and compelled her to submit to him.

The grief stricken mother confronted her husband with the girl's borrible story. He denied his guilt and that same night disappeared. On Tuesday the girl was delivered of a child which died on Thursday, and now the girl herself is at the point of death and beyoud recovery.

Early in the day Kalenbrander and William Smith, who resides at No. 35 Christ street, had gone fishing, and meeting with but indifferent success the young men went in bathing. They soon after came out of the water, and after dressing resumed their fishing. Kalenbrander soon after desired another swim, and leaving Smith on the boom fishing, disrobed and entered the water, swimming to a boom a short distance away. He attempted to return but being a poor swimmer the current bore him down. Seeing he could not reach the boom he called to Smith, "Come and help me, Will, I can't make it." Smith, seeing that Kalenbrander was drowning, immediately dived from the boom and coming up near the frightened man, attempted to take him to a safe place on the boom.

Smith was overloaded with his clothing, which he had not taken time to remove, and was able to render but little assistance to Kalenbrander, who was so badly frightened that he worked directly against the man who was making such a desperate attempt to save his life. Smith, in order to save himself, was soon obliged to give him up. He kept his head about the water for a short time, when he sank and nothing more was seen of him.

The police were notified and the river in the vicinity of the accident was dragged, but at dark the body of the unfortunate man had not been

HENRY CLEW'S LETTER. News of the Markets and Its Effects Reviewed.

New York, June 26 .- Foreign investors have received a thorough scare concerning the securities of all silver-uscerning the securities of all silver-using countries, and, no matter how much we may have thought such fears unfounded, they acted upon them nevertheless. Present gold shipments, even if due to special causes as some assert, have been unquestionably facilitated by this danger in the imagination of foreigners of having interest and principal payable in depreciated silver. The truth is, our merchandise exports, in spite of being the largest on record, were insufficient to bay our imports of were insufficient to pay our imports of merchandise and securities and foreign travel combined. It is a source of wontravel combined. It is a source of wonder, therefore, that we have been able to back such an immense amount of stock and bonds without more weakness on the New York market. It shows conclusively that Americans have more confidence in the future of their properties than Europeane; a confidence that will probably bring its rewards when the average foreigner wakes up to the real situation here. Should the European demand revive, it can only be astisfied with higher prices than now rule. Another development of importance was the appointment of a receiver for Richmond terminal. Now that the worst concerning this property is known, a sone of relief pervades the whole market. For months this vast conglomeration of stock and bonds has been a dead weight upon the whole market. Fortunately their decline has been a gradual and widely distributed that no serious diseaser is anticipatep.

Such lines as are independent of cotton trathe are doing fairly well; but the cotton district lines are not overwhelmed with presperity just at the present; nor are they likely to be, should we again have a cotton crop larger than the world needs.

The outlook for the Anti-Option bill is uncertain. A canvass of the senate show that only a few more negative votes in addition to those now counted upon would be necessary to kill the measure in the senate. There seems to be a fair possibility of blotting out this silly legislative effort. If the bill becomes law control of our wheat and cotton markets would be immediately transferred to England, which is nacotton markets would be immediately transferred to England, which is naturally a chronic bear upon all that she buys of us. Where the benefit of the Anti-Option bill would come in to the American farmer I fail to see. The intended beneficiary would be the worst of sufferers. President Harrison has not expressed himself on the subject, but I sheuld be surprised were he to fail in vetoing it. Nothing further of importance has transpired concerning the international conference. Although I do not anticipate that any concerted action of

It will at least pave the way for a future international underway for a future international under-standing of some sort, as well as em-phasize the necessity of radical cor-rectives of some kind. If for no better reasons, therefor, the conference should receive the hearty support of the entire banking fraternity. As al-ready said, I consider the future more encouraging.
